LiDar technology device application in hydraulic laboratory practice

Marta KIRAGA and Zbigniew POPEK
Department of Hydraulic Engineering
Warsaw University of Life Sciences WULS-SGGW
email: marta_kiraga@sggw.pl zbigniew_popek@sggw.pl
LiDAR technology device application in hydraulic laboratory practice

Marta KIRAGA and Zbigniew POPEK
email: marta_kiraga@sggw.pl zbigniew_popek@sggw.pl

LiDAR application in laboratory flume bed shape investigation in based on the ground of introducing the autonomic measuring module, containing laser scanner device, motor, steering microcomputer and inner and outer prefabricated elements.
The cloud of points obtained in this way is then combined to create a 3D representation of the target object or area.